

Mum's the word

By Simon Byrne

TWO Cheshire mums are offering busy Trafford parents a unique and timesaving service.

Vicky Matthews and Caroline Gowing, pictured, set up Pink Spaghetti in Lymm last September and offer a personal PA service.

Vicky said: "We're both busy parents ourselves and we realised that there was very little help out there. People don't always have as much time as they would like, and we offer to do anything and everything for them – as long as it's legal!"

They've dealt with a number of different services from picking up the dry-cleaning, arranging children's birthday parties, to creating a 'memory book' for a customer's birthday.

Vicky said: "The memory book is one of the really interesting things we've been asked to do. We've spent four months contacting the lady's old friends."

They've recently started a unique 'nursery service' that allows parents to hand over a shopping list or list of errands, just as they drop their children off.

"There's also been quite an emphasis on promoting local businesses. A lot of people would like to visit smaller, local shops such as the butchers and the bakery, but it simply isn't convenient with work or picking up the children," Vicky said.
